

25 years of access to secret squares and gardens – London Open Gardens 2024 tickets now on sale!

The London Parks and Gardens charity, LPG, is delighted to launch 'early bird' ticket sales for London Open Gardens 2024, celebrating 25 years of unique public access to over 100 secret or usually-closed special gardens for one weekend; 8/9 June 2024.

This much-loved event began with volunteers' passion to open up iconic but locked London Squares in the west and has grown to embrace gardens across central London; from exquisite roof spaces owned by city banks, to historic institutions, community allotments and even the Prime Minister's Downing St garden in previous years.

Around 40,000 garden visits each year provide pleasure and inspiration to ticketholders from London and far afield, celebrating London's status as a park city. All proceeds support LPG's essential year-round work to cherish and protect city greenspaces, and profits are shared with the community gardens which open.

Nathan Oley, Chair of London Open Gardens and Trustee of London Parks and Gardens commented: "A silver jubilee is a chance to savour the pleasure that gardens bring to people of all ages and we're delighted that over 100 special spaces will open for our unique weekend next June. As well as welcoming back many familiar favourites, we will be joined by exciting new spaces and events across the city, including a beautiful new square, thriving allotments and some secret highlights to be revealed next year."

"City gardens are places of pleasure and refreshment, but also play a crucial part in responding to both the climate emergency and the loss of wildlife, so this weekend has never been more important. With free access for children, we hope that visitors of all ages will enjoy a day out and be inspired to keep our city green!"
